What's New In Openfire?

Bandari is a free, open source and cross-platform IM client. With Bandari you can chat, read and write email, manage your contacts and manage a list of social networks in one convenient application. Bandari also allows you to perform instant messaging and VoIP communication over different networks, the connectivity options being summarized in the figure below. The most important features of the Bandari client are: The presence/away status of each user Conversation history Conversation window: allows you to participate in a chat Chat window: allows you to join a chat Mail: allows you to read or send email Social networks: allow you to add social networks and to manage their lists An alternative to AIM/ICQ/Yahoo Messenger and other IM clients In the past, it was usually more convenient to switch to a different IM client than using one of the clients listed above. Bandari is a different beast: it is an all-in-one IM client which allows you to chat with other users using all those same IM clients, making it even more useful than the old IM clients. When it comes to social networks, it is currently possible to integrate your Facebook, Google Plus, LinkedIn, Twitter, VK and more accounts into the Bandari client. In addition to that, Bandari provides an easy way to sign up to the popular IM networks like AIM, ICQ, Yahoo, MSN, Google Talk, Skype, and many others. The mobile client for Windows, Mac, iOS and Android The Bandari mobile client can also be used on different devices such as a tablet or a smartphone. The Bandari mobile client is also available on some mobile platforms, but only on a small percentage of them.
